Architarium Completes Memorial Cemetery and Aggie Field of Honor
Large new memorial garden serves City of College Station and Texas A&M University

Austin, TX (July 17, 2009) – Architarium, a US columbarium manufacturing business, today announces its successful completion of the Memorial Cemetery and Aggie Field of Honor in College Station, Texas.

This new 56 acre memorial garden is a joint venture between the City of College Station and Texas A&M University. It contains both burial plots and columbarium niches. There is a 20 acre section especially for Aggie students, alumni, faculty, family and friends.

Architarium manufactured the columbariums for the memorial garden using 100% stainless steel and granite in the maroon and white Aggie colors. There are 1,224 niches in flat, convex and concave configurations – nestled back to back.

Increasingly, communities with strong affinity like Texas A&M University are building memorial gardens to serve and honor members indefinitely.
